Search text you want to change

A language string is composed of two parts: a specific language constant and its value.

For example, in the string:

COM_CONTENT_READ_MORE="Read more: "

'COM_CONTENT_READ_MORE' is the constant and 'Read more: ' is the value.

You have to use the specific language constant in order to create an override of the value.

Therefore, you can search for the constant or the value you want to change with the search field below.

By clicking on the desired result the correct constant will automatically be inserted into the form.

Language Domains - Configure a domain per Joomla! language

This plugin allows you to switch the domain-name as soon as a specific language selected. Each domain is bound to a language, by configuring the plugin parameter. Once enabled, the plugin detects the current domainname, checks the current language, and redirects to a new domain if needed.

 I haven't always been a beach person. I've always had a fondness for rocky shores, the granite rising out of the still clear water of a Canadian Shield lake or the weathered rocky headlands and tide pools of the Pacific northwest. The beaches I knew growing up seemed sterile and boring. My first visit to Florida was just about exactly five years ago. My wife had come down on a job interview which conveniently happened to occur at the end of the week before our spring break. I joined her Friday evening and with the return of our friends in

 Je n'ai pas toujours été une personne de la plage. J'ai toujours eu un penchant pour les rivages rocheux, le granite s'élevant hors de l'eau reste claire d'un lac du Bouclier canadien ou des promontoires rocheux érodés et marelles du Nord-Ouest du Pacifique. Les plages, je savais que de plus en plus vers le haut semblaient stérile et ennuyeux.
