

Due to 'auto' values applied to the right margin, the element should be left justified within its parent. The gray rectangle should therefore appear on the left edge of the viewport (e.g., the browser window). The text inside the gray rectangle should not be centered.