

This element should have an overall padding of 25%, which is calculated with respect to the width of the parent element. Both the content background and the padding should be aqua (light blue). Individual properties are tested here.