

Due to 'auto' values applied to the left and right margins, the element should be centered within its parent. The gray rectangle should therefore appear in the middle of the viewport (e.g., the browser window). The text inside the gray rectangle should not be centered.